In August, 1850, became clerk with T. B. Coddington & Co., N. Y. City, importers and dealers in iron and other metals, and remained with that firm until 1856, when became mem. firm of Bunting, Bean & Co., metal brokers. Joined father, 1860, in establishing firm of E. A. &

S. W. Hopkins, Importers and dealers in railway iron and railway supplies, and negotiators of railway and other securities in America and Europe; on retirement of father, 1866, became senior partner of firm of S. W. Hopkins & Co., with two new partners, and established branch in London, where his two partners resided, both houses doing a large business in negotiating railway securities and furnishing rails and supplies to railroad companies in U. S., until it dissolved, in 1874; firm financed construction of Port Huron & Lake Michigan R'y, and the Peninsular R'ys of Mich., Ind. and Ill.; these four railroads were later consolidated as the Chicago & Lake Huron R. R. Co. (of which S. W. Hopkins & Co. owned controlling interest); later reorganized as Chicago & Grand Trunk R'y; formulated plans, 1875, and carried them out successfully, for reorganization and recapitalization of People's Gas Light & Coke Co., of Chicago, purchasing for self and English friends one-half the new issue of bonds and a large block of the new issue of stocks of the company (total amount involved, $8,600,000) and was for years one of largest stockholders in that company; since 1879, mem. Inventor, mfr; b. Shelby, Orleans Co., N. Y., 1836; ed. public schools; m. Arsula S. Vaughan, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y. Inventor of the Johnston system of harvesting machinery, metal planishing and metal forging machines which forge irregular forms rapidly and to finished duplicates when used for forging. Has discovered a method of making a fire and water proof self-hardening cement mixture that is highly "radio active" in flame and in the heat from the sun. Extended use of this cement has proved many things by mechanical methods which have, before this discovery, rested on the postulated theories of scientists. This has been applied to many departments or divisions, and confirms in a remarkable manner the teachings of the present. In fuel burning and in the treatment of minerals and metals, a useful revolution in the arts is produced. Address: 3 Oxford Av., Buffalo, N. Y.

LESLIE, Mrs. Frank (Baroness de Bazus):

Editor, publisher; b. New Orleans, 1851, of old French Huguenot family, descended from Philip Picot; ed. at home by her father, in French, Spanish, Italian, German and Latin; began writing for publication at age of thirteen, and subsequently married Frank Leslie, the publisher. In 1877 made transcontinental tour, from which grew her work, From Gotham to the Golden Gate; Itza, the Unexplored Regions of Central America; Rents in Our Clothes; Are We All Deceivers?, etc., besides translating from the French, Spanish and Italian, and magazine articles on travel and social topics, poems, etc. On Jan. 10, 1885, Mr. Leslie died, leaving entire establishment $300,000 in debt, and sixteen publications in hands of an assignee. After seventeen different law suits, triumphed over all obstacles, straightened out affairs of the publications (among which was Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper) and made great financial and literary success. About 1902 sold out all her interests, and the name Frank Leslie, which she had legally assumed in 1881 for business purposes, she now abandoned, resuming the family name of the Baroness de Bazus, a French title which was created in the time of Saint Louis, and which has belonged to her ancestors for many generations. Nov. 30, 1895), Edith Maude (b. Dec. 23, 1897), Elizabeth Dorothy (b. July 15, 1900). Was three years pastor in Fall River, Mass., one year Providence, R. I., two years in Pascoag, R. I.; since 1898, pastor of the Welcome Primitive Methodist Ch.; now at Classon Av., near Lafayette Av., Brooklyn. Came to the church when it had only seven members and had just been closed for arrears of ground rent, being then on leased land at Classon Av., between Myrtle and Park Aves. Borrowed money to reopen church and renew lease. In 1903, land was sold for foundry site and church was sold for old lumber. Induced congregation to meet for worship in a store formerly used as a barber shop; using only means, bought a lot with a dilapidated old factory building at Classon and Lafayette Aves., which, with his own hands, aided by odd hours of work given by some of his parishioners, he turned into a neat church, working at masonry, carpentry, gasfitting, painting, glazing, etc. Congregation was poor and he had to devise many methods of raising money to procure the materials, and the difficulties were many, but the church was finally completed and now has a congregation of 100 or more. Abner Bartlett; s. of Abner Bartlett, Sr. (mg'r Astor Estate for 30 years). Traveled, since 5 years of age, all over the world, coming professionally to America in 1876, for the centennial production of All Baba at Niblo's Garden, returned to Europe, then back to America with Strakosch Italian Opera Co.; then married and retired from stage life, 1883; later, through mismanagement of fortune, compelled to teach at same profession. As child, was compelled to seek an audience with Emperor William III (then king), as sister Helen and herself were enjoying a good salary even at the early age of 8-9 years, under the guidance of their mother. The Children Protective Soc. in Germany stopped their appearance, as they were creating too much of a furor, and Taglioni was getting heavy and passe (at Berlin Court Theatre); newspapers commented on their dancing and put them ahead of Taglioni, which caused the society to act, the first on record in Germany, 1862. Now directress Knickerbocker Conservatory of Music, vocal and instrumental music, physical culture and dancing. Lutheran. Performed before all the crowned heads of Europe, the great Rubinstein, Abbe Liszt, Queen Victoria, Prince of Wales (King Edward) and many others. Coll., 1892; m. 1st, Lucy Kimball (died 1871); 2d, 1873, Anna Livingston, d. W. L. Street and g.-d. of Gen. Randolph S. Street, and descendant of the Livingstons, Van Rensselaers and Schuylers, old Manhattan families; five children by first wife, three are now living: Edith Livingston (m. April 30, 1900, William Corcoran Eustis), Helen (m. London, Oct., 1901, the Comte de Perigord, now Duc De Valencery), Alice (m. Feb., 1902, Winthrop Rutherford). On completion of academy course, engaged in mercantile business; when 20 years old began business at Hanover, N. H., continuing about five years; in 1849, became connected with house of James M. Beebe & Co., Boston, as clerk; joined the firm later as partner, and after about five years came to N. Y. City and established the wholesale dry goods commission house of Morton & Grinnell; in 1863, went into the banking business, establishing the house of Morton, Bliss & Co., and in connection with Sir John Rose, who was late financial minister of Canada, founded house of Morton, Rose & Co., London. Made careful study of the financial transactions of the U. S. Gov't, and his firm was one of the syndicates which successfully assisted in funding the national debt and made the resumption of specie payments possible at a fixed rate. The London firm were the first fiscal agents of the U. S. Gov't, 1873-84, and were again appt'd, 1889. In the negotiation of the U. S. bonds, and the payment of the Geneva Award of $15,500,000, and the Halifax Fishery Award of $5,500,000, his firm was associated with Messrs. Rothschilds and other London bankers. Firm of Morton, Bliss & Co. was dissolved Oct. 1, 1899, and was succeeded by the Morton Trust Co., of which he has ever since been pres.; also continues at head of the London houses of Morton, Rose & Co., until its dissolution. Co. Appt'd, 1878, by President Hayes, honorary comm'r of U. S. to the Paris Exp'n; elected, 1878 and 1880, to 46th and 47th Congresses, serving from 1879 to 1883, and was influential in financial legislation; strongly opposed the unlimited coinage of silver in 1879; was also deeply interested in international politics and the relations of the U. S. with other countries, and was mem. of the Foreign Affairs Com. of the 46th Congress. Was informally tendered Republican nomination for vice-president at the Chicago Convention, 1880, but declined it, preferring to remain in Congress; subsequently given choice between a place in the Cabinet as secretary of State, Secretary of the Navy or the French mission, and chose the latter, serving 1881-85; while in that position was able to secure the removal of restrictions upon the importation of American pork to France, and the recognition of American corporations in that country; he drove the first rivet in the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World, and had the honor of accepting it for his Government; represented U. S. at Paris Electrical Exp'n, and at the Submarine Cable Convention; nominated for vice-president of the U. S. by Republican Party, 1888, at the Chicago Convention, and elected on presidential ticket with Benjamin Harrison, serving 1889-93, and discharging with ability and in an impartial manner the duties of presiding officer of the Senate.
